QUIZ

Q.1	continuity of happiness, prosperity	02
Q.2	physical facility, inadequate	02
Q.3	authentication, determination	02
Q.4	personal transformation, societal transformation	02
Q.5	justice, order	02

Q.1	Basic Human Aspiration and its Fulfillment 1. The basic human aspiration is continuity of happiness and prosperity 2. This is fulfilled by living in human consciousness, by ensuring right understanding, right feeling and physical facility 3. Transformation from animal consciousness to human consciousness is ensured through human education-sanskar 4. Living with human consciousness provides the base for ensuring justice and order leading to undivided society and universal human order. The basic human aspiration is for continuity of happiness and prosperity which is fulfilled by living with human consciousness which in essence calls for having three things: (a) Right understanding in the self, (b) Right feeling in the relationship with human being, and (c) The required physical facility ensuring mutual fulfilment with the rest of nature If ensuring all three, it will be able to ensure continuity of happiness and prosperity for each and work for continuity of happiness and prosperity of rest. The next conclusion is that transformation from animal consciousness to human consciousness is ensured through human education-sanskar. It also concluded that living with human consciousness provides the basis for ensuring justice and order leading to undivided society and universal human order.	10
Q.2	The basic human aspiration is for continuity of happiness and prosperity and this is fulfilled by living with human consciousness, by ensuring right understanding, right feeling and physical facility. For a human being, physical facility is of course, required but physical facility alone does not suffice for ensuring continuity of happiness and prosperity. Role of Education-Sanskar To Enable Transformation

	Looking at the priority of these three things, the right understanding in the self is the first priority. With right understanding in the self, one can understand relationship, identify the values in the relationship, have those values ensured in oneself and fulfil those values leading to fulfilment in relationship. With right understanding in the self and fulfilment in relationship, one can identify need for physical facility correctly, produce more than what is required ensuring prosperity of self and rest, work for prosperity for others. The transformation from animal consciousness to human consciousness is necessary. And then we said that to undergo this transformation in every human being, the most effective means is the human education and sanskar. Through it, we can ensure this transformation which essentially means that we can ensure the fulfilment of human aspiration for each and every human being going through this process of education.	10
Q.3	Living with human consciousness would mean all these three things: 1. Right understanding in the self, 2. Justice in relationship with human being, and 3. Participation in the larger order with nature as a whole from family order to world family order. If ensured, the outcome of this is as follows: • At the individual level - mutual happiness and mutual prosperity, and • At the societal level - an undivided human society and universal human order. Expected Transformations Following transformations have to take place- 1. Personal Transformation (Transformation in Consciousness) 2. Societal Transformation (Transformation in the Society) These are the two transformations which are desirable. Out of these two: the basic transformation is the personal transformation in the consciousness of the self of human being. This essentially, means development of human consciousness. This is the starting point and once this human consciousness in within, share it through behaviour and work, ultimately, it will be leading to undivided human society and universal human order. These two transformations are required.

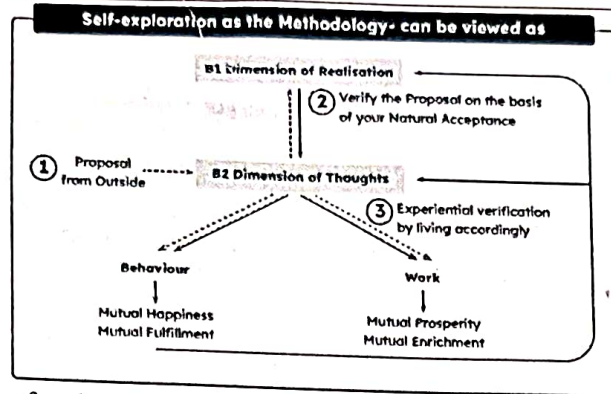

Societal transformation is moving from inhuman society to human society.

As a human being living in society, these are the four human goals that we have identified:

1. Right understanding and right feeling leading to the happiness in every individual.
2. Prosperity in every family.
3. Fearlessness and trust in the society and the
4. Co-existence and mutual fulfilment in nature and in existence.

This is what humans aspire for as a human being. This is what human society will be, fulfilling the human goals. Of course, it will be starting from family and going to world family which are having common goals. But look at situation today, in place of human society there seems to be an inhuman society. It's more like a crowd or battle field rather than as society. This is because of all the things which are mentioned in the dark block in the diagram above. In place of right understanding and right feeling, every individual has an assumption that money is everything. Then in place of fearlessness and trust in society, there is domination, exploitation, fear. And in place of ensuring co-existence in nature attempting to do mastery over the nature, exploit the nature. And all this ultimately leads to obsession for consumption, profit and sensual pleasure which is creating all kinds of problems in the society.

Q.5

The process of self-exploration, it starts with placing a proposal from outside to the self. And it starts working at the level of imagination, at the level of thought, at the level of B2. Humans listen to the proposal, analyse it and reflect upon it at the level of thought and feeling in block B2, i.e., the dimension of thought. With this, two things are happening (refer to the diagram above):

One, the self responding in terms of behaviour with human being and work with rest of nature. Self can verify that when behaving with human being, does it lead to mutual happiness or not? Similarly, when working with the rest of nature, does it lead to mutual prosperity or not?

Two, self verifying as to whether it is naturally acceptable or not. So, two-way verification is taking place: when self has the right proposal in thoughts, imagination, its start working on it and ask if it is naturally acceptable or not.
