

You are an expert academic assistant. I have provided you with [number] document(s) and a list of topics and sub-topics from a syllabus.

Your task is to generate a comprehensive study guide based exclusively on the information within the provided documents.

The response should be structured in two distinct ways for each major topic:

Part 1: Detailed Explanations for Long-Form Answers

For each topic and its corresponding sub-topics, you must:

Generate Comprehensive Explanations: Write a thorough explanation for each sub-topic, detailed enough to serve as a complete 8 or 10-mark long-form exam answer. Structure these explanations with clear headings and paragraphs.

Incorporate All Details: Include all relevant definitions, processes, key characteristics, benefits, challenges, and examples found in the source material for each point.

Reference Diagrams: If the documents contain relevant diagrams, you must refer to them within your explanation. Clearly state the diagram's name, the source document it is in, and the page number where it can be found.

Part 2: Summaries for Short-Form Answers

After providing the detailed explanations for a major topic area, you must:

Create a Key Points Summary: Add a separate section titled Key Points for [Major Topic Name] (1/2 Marks Questions).

Use a Concise Bulleted List: In this summary section, present the most critical facts, definitions, and concepts as a concise bulleted list. This format should be suitable for quick revision for quizzes, fill-in-the-blanks, or 1-2 mark questions.

Crucial Constraints:

Source Adherence: Base your entire response only on the content of the provided documents. Do not introduce any external information or knowledge.

Citation: You must follow the provided citation guidelines strictly. Every piece of information derived from the sources must be immediately followed by a citation in the format ``.

Basic Human Aspiration and its Fulfillment

This section covers the core concepts of human aspiration, the means for its fulfillment, and the transformative processes involved at both personal and societal levels.

Part 1: Detailed Explanations for Long-Form Answers

1. Basic Human Aspiration and its Fulfillment

The Basic Human Aspiration The fundamental and universal aspiration for every human being is the desire for a continuity of happiness and prosperity. This is the primary goal we are all working towards.

The Program for Fulfillment To achieve this continuous state of happiness and prosperity, a human being must ensure three key things, which together constitute "living with human consciousness". These are:

1. Right Understanding in the Self: This is the first and highest priority. Right understanding refers to comprehending the harmony at all levels of existence: the individual, family, society, nature, and existence as a whole. It allows a person to understand relationships, identify values, and ensure those values are fulfilled.
2. Right Feeling in Relationship: This involves ensuring fulfillment in relationships with other human beings. With right understanding, one can achieve mutual happiness in these interactions. This extends from relationships within the immediate family to the entire world family.

3. Physical Facility: While physical facilities are necessary for the body, they are not sufficient on their own to ensure continuous happiness for a human being. Right understanding allows a person to correctly identify their need for physical facilities and produce more than required, leading to prosperity for themselves and others. This ensures mutual fulfillment and enrichment with the rest of nature.

When all three of these are ensured, a person can achieve a continuous state of happiness and prosperity and also contribute to the happiness and prosperity of others. This complete state is known as living with human consciousness.

2. Animal Consciousness vs. Human Consciousness

The document outlines two states of living or consciousness: Animal Consciousness and Human Consciousness. The transformation from the former to the latter is presented as the essential progress for a human being.

Animal Consciousness

- Definition: A state of living where one's primary focus is on physical facilities alone. In this state, a person's imagination (desires, thoughts, and expectations) is guided by preconditioning (beliefs adopted from society, education, etc., without verification) and sensation (information from the body).
- Characteristics: Living with animal consciousness is characterized by a lack of right understanding and fulfillment in relationships. This inevitably leads to failure in achieving continuous happiness.
- Outcomes: This state leads to unhappiness and deprivation, often causing one to make others unhappy and exploit or deprive them. At a societal level, it results in an "Inhuman Society".

Human Consciousness

- Definition: A state of living where one has right understanding in the self, fulfillment in relationships, and the required physical facilities. In this state, a person's imagination is guided by their right understanding of reality—specifically, their understanding of relationship, harmony, and co-existence.
- Characteristics: It is the state where one's "higher activities" of the Self, such as contemplation, understanding, and realization, are awakened and guide one's thoughts and feelings. This leads to a state of internal harmony and happiness.

- Outcomes: Living with human consciousness provides the foundation for justice and order, leading to an undivided society and a universal human order. It results in mutual happiness and mutual prosperity.

The diagram titled

"Role of Education-Sanskar: To Enable Transformation" on page 5 of the source document visually contrasts these two states, showing how Animal Consciousness is a state of being "missing" right understanding and relationships, while Human Consciousness encompasses all three necessary components for fulfillment.

3. Personal and Societal Transformation through Education-Sanskar

The transition from animal consciousness to human consciousness requires a deliberate transformation, which is enabled by human education and sanskar (culture/values). This process occurs at two levels: personal and societal.

Personal Transformation This is the fundamental transformation required and it takes place within the consciousness of the individual Self.

- Process: It involves a shift in the basis of one's imagination (desires, thoughts, expectations). Instead of being driven by unverified preconditioning and sensations, the imagination becomes guided by a person's "natural acceptance" and the higher activities of the Self—contemplation, understanding, and realization. This is a move from "assuming without knowing" to "assuming based on knowing".
- Goal: The goal is to achieve right understanding, right feeling, and right thought within the Self, leading to a definite and self-organized human conduct.
- Diagram Reference: The "Personal Transformation" diagram on page 9 illustrates this shift, showing the Self moving from being guided by 'Preconditioning' and 'Sensation' to being guided by 'Self Verification on the basis of Natural Acceptance'.

Societal Transformation Personal transformation is the necessary starting point for societal transformation.

- Process: This is the transformation from an "Inhuman Society" to a "Human Society". An inhuman society, rooted in animal consciousness, operates on wrong assumptions (e.g., "money is everything") and is characterized by domination, exploitation, and fear. This leads to problems like war, terrorism, resource depletion, and pollution.
- Goal: The goal is to establish a Human Society that is family-based with common goals for all. The four human goals are:
 1. Right understanding and right feeling in every individual.
 2. Prosperity in every family.

3. Fearlessness (Trust) in society.
 4. Co-existence (Mutual Fulfillment) in nature/existence.
- Diagram Reference: The "Societal Transformation" diagram on page 11 contrasts the characteristics and outcomes of an 'InHuman Society' (Crowd or Battlefield) with those of a 'Human Society'.

Human education is the key that leads to personal transformation, which in turn becomes the basis for societal transformation.

4. The Self as Central to Human Existence and the Solution to Problems

The document repeatedly concludes that the Self is central to human existence. All issues of human conduct—and their solutions—originate within the Self.

The Problem: Assuming Without Knowing The variation and indefiniteness in human behavior and conduct are primarily due to the Self's activity of "assuming". When our assumptions are based on preconditioning or sensation without being verified by direct knowing, our conduct remains indefinite and can change, leading to problems. This state of "assuming without knowing" is the core problem.

The Solution: Knowing and Right Understanding The resolution to this problem is to base our assumptions on "knowing".

- Knowing is defined as seeing reality as it is, in its completeness, through direct observation by the Self. This knowing is definite, continuous, and universal.
- Process of Resolution: The process of reaching this solution is through self-exploration and self-verification. A proposal is taken in and verified on the basis of one's natural acceptance. This is an appeal to the "higher activities" of the Self (Block B1). When assumptions are aligned with this knowing, our recognition of relationships and our fulfillment of them become definite, leading to a definite, self-organized human conduct.

The Role of the Self in an All-encompassing Resolution Ensuring right understanding, right feeling, and right thought in the Self is the core program for a human being. This is the all-encompassing solution because it creates harmony that extends across all levels of human living:

1. At the individual level: It brings harmony and happiness within the Self by aligning imagination (Block B2) with right understanding (Block B1).
2. At the level of relationships: It leads to justice and mutual happiness with other human beings, from the family to the world family.
3. At the level of society: It leads to an undivided human society with fearlessness and trust.

4. At the level of nature/existence: It leads to participation in the larger order and co-existence with nature.

The diagram

"Knowing & Assuming" on page 23 clearly outlines the path from the 'Problem' (preconditioning/assuming without knowing) to the 'Solution' (knowing through self-verification) via 'Education-Sanskar'.

Part 2: Key Points for Basic Human Aspiration and its Fulfillment (1/2 Marks Questions)

- The basic human aspiration is for the continuity of happiness and prosperity.
- This aspiration is fulfilled by living with human consciousness.
- Human consciousness requires three things: Right Understanding, Right Feeling, and Physical Facility.
- The first and highest priority for fulfillment is Right Understanding in the Self.
- Living only for physical facilities is called Animal Consciousness.
- The transformation from animal to human consciousness is ensured through human education-sanskar.
- Two transformations are required: Personal Transformation (in consciousness) and Societal Transformation.
- Personal transformation is the shift from animal consciousness to human consciousness within the Self.
- Societal transformation is the shift from an inhuman society to a human society.
- An inhuman society is characterized by domination, exploitation, and fear.
- The four goals of a human society are: right understanding in individuals, prosperity in families, fearlessness in society, and co-existence in nature.
- A human being is the co-existence of the Self (consciousness) and the Body (material).
- The activities of the Self are continuous, while the activities of the Body are temporary.
- The Self is central to human existence.
- Indefinite human conduct is the result of "assuming without knowing".
- Definite human conduct is the result of having assumptions based on "knowing".

- "Knowing" is seeing reality as it is, through direct observation by the Self.
- The imagination (desire, thought, expectation) in the Self is guided by three possible sources: preconditioning, sensation, or natural acceptance.
- The higher activities of the Self (Block B1) are contemplation, understanding, and realization.
- Living with human consciousness provides the basis for an undivided society and universal human order.

Right Understanding (Knowing) - Knower, Known & the Process

This section explores the domain of right understanding, starting with the identity of the knower, the scope of what is to be known, the process of knowing, and the ultimate impact of this knowledge on the Self and human conduct.

Part 1: Detailed Explanations for Long-Form Answers

1. The Domain of Right Understanding and Resolution

Right Understanding (Knowing) Right Understanding is defined as the ability "to see the reality as it is, in its completeness". It is the foundation for all other activities of a human being. To see a reality in its completeness means to understand all five of its aspects:

1. Form: The unit's shape, size, density, etc..
2. Property: The unit's effect on another unit.
3. Natural Characteristic: The unit's participation in the larger order or its relationship with other units.
4. Innateness: The unit's self-organization or harmony.
5. Co-existence: The unit's submergence in space.

The Form and Property are characterized by variety and change, while the Natural Characteristic, Innateness, and Co-existence are definite, continuous, and universal. Right understanding is essentially seeing this definite and universal essence of reality.

Resolution Resolution is the state of harmony within the Self that arises from clarity on nine key aspects of human existence. It is based on right understanding and encompasses right feeling and right thought. The nine aspects of resolution are detailed in the "Human Target" diagram on page 3 of the source document and are categorized as follows:

- In the Self (I): Right Understanding, Wisdom (Identification of Human Goal), and Science (How to fulfill Human Goal).
- As a Human Being (Self & Body): The expression of the Self's clarity through Behaviour, Work, and Participation in the Larger Order.
- Outside: The societal outcome of living with resolution, which is an Undivided Human Society, a Universal Human Order, and a Human Tradition where the human goal is fulfilled.

2. The Knower: The Self (I)

The knower is the Self (I). The Self is the seer, the observer, and the one who understands and knows. The body is merely an instrument used by the Self.

The Self has the potential to "see" reality at various levels, depending on its competence and which of its activities are active. These levels of seeing include:

- Tasting/Selecting: Seeing the form or shape of a reality.
- Comparing/Analysing: Seeing the property or the effect of one reality on another.
- Contemplating/Imaging: Seeing the participation of a reality in a relationship or larger order.

- Understanding/Determination: Seeing the innateness or harmony of a reality.
- Realisation/Authentication: Seeing the co-existence or submergence of a reality in space.

When the Self is able to see a reality in its completeness by utilizing all these activities, especially the higher activities of contemplation, understanding, and realisation, it is called the "Knower".

3. The Known: Existence and its Aspects

What is "To be Known" is the entire existence. The domain of knowing can be focused and structured by exploring three primary areas:

1. Knowledge of Human Being: Understanding the Self as the knower, doer, and experiencer.
2. Knowledge of Existence: Understanding nature, its interconnectedness, and its co-existence.
3. Knowledge of Human Conduct: Understanding the role of the human being within existence.

Ultimately, the essence of what needs to be known can be simplified to just nine things:

- The

Innateness of the four orders (Physical, Bio, Animal, Human).

- The

Natural Characteristics of the four orders.

- Co-existence of nature in space.

4. The Process of Knowing

The process of knowing is the "awakening to the activity of Contemplation, Understanding & Realisation" within the Self. As these higher activities of the Self are awakened, the Self develops the competence to see reality in its completeness.

- Realisation: This is the activity of seeing existence as co-existence, which is in the form of units submerged in space. With this, one sees that every unit is energised in space, self-organised, and recognizes and fulfills its relationship with every other unit.
- Understanding: This is the activity of seeing the harmony, self-organisation, or innateness of every unit and, ultimately, of the entire nature. This clarity about the definite self-organisation of every unit leads to a feeling of bliss.

- Contemplation: This is the activity of seeing the participation, role, or relationship of a unit in the larger order. For a human being, this means seeing their definite role and values (like trust, respect, affection) in relationships, which leads to a feeling of satisfaction and contentment.

5. The Impact of Right Understanding

The awakening of the Self to these higher activities has a profound impact on both the internal state of the Self and its external expression as human conduct.

Impact on the Self: When there is right understanding, the higher activities (Block B1: Realisation, Understanding, Contemplation) intrinsically guide the lower activities of imagination (Block B2: Imaging, Analysing-Comparing, Selecting-Tasting). This alignment of the Self with its natural acceptance for relationship, harmony, and co-existence results in a state of continuous happiness, which manifests as:

- Bliss: A feeling of fulfillment from the definiteness that comes with Understanding and Realisation.
- Satisfaction/Contentment: A feeling that arises from Contemplation, where one sees their definite role and the provision in nature to fulfill it.
- Peace: A state resulting from thoughts being aligned with co-existence, harmony, and relationship.
- Happiness: A state at the level of expectation (selecting-tasting) when it is guided by right understanding, leading to harmony with the outside world.

Impact on Human Conduct: This harmonious internal state naturally expresses itself outside as definite human conduct.

- Behaviour with Humans: Leads to mutual happiness and forms the basis of an Undivided Human Society.
- Work with Rest of Nature: Leads to mutual prosperity, where both human needs are fulfilled and nature is preserved.
- Participation in the Larger Order: Leads to the fulfillment of the human goal and the materialization of a Universal Human Order, starting from the family and expanding to the world family.

Part 2: Key Points for Right Understanding (Knowing) (1/2 Marks Questions)

- Right Understanding is to see reality as it is, in its completeness.
- The five aspects of any reality are: Form, Property, Natural Characteristic, Innateness, and Co-existence.

- Form and Property are changing and variable; the other three are definite, continuous, and universal.
- The Knower is the Self (I). The Body is an instrument.
- What is "To be Known" is the entire existence, which can be studied as Human Being, Existence, and Human Conduct.
- The nine essential things to understand are the innateness (4) and natural characteristics (4) of the four orders, plus co-existence (1).
- The process of knowing is the awakening to the higher activities of the Self: Contemplation, Understanding, and Realisation.
- Realisation is seeing the co-existence of units in space.
- Understanding is seeing the harmony or innateness of units.
- Contemplation is seeing the participation or relationship of units in a larger order.
- Resolution is a state of harmony in the Self from having clarity on nine aspects of existence, and it is based on Right Understanding.
- The natural innateness of a human being is the "will to live with continuous happiness".
- With right understanding, the higher activities (B1) of the Self guide the imagination (B2).
- The impact of right understanding on the Self is a state of continuous happiness manifesting as Bliss, Satisfaction, Peace, and Happiness.
- The impact of right understanding on conduct is behaviour leading to mutual happiness, work leading to mutual prosperity, and participation leading to a Universal Human Order.

Understanding Existence and the Process of Inner Evolution

This section covers the comprehensive understanding of existence as co-existence, the expression of this co-existence in nature, the process of inner evolution required to perceive this reality, and the role of the human being within this existence.

Part 1: Detailed Explanations for Long-Form Answers

1. Existence as Co-existence: Units and Space

The fundamental nature of existence is co-existence. This co-existence is comprised of two distinct realities: Units and Space.

- Units (Nature): These are realities that are limited in size. Every unit is an 'activity' and is active. All units that make up nature are submerged in space. Units can be further categorized into two types:
 - Material Units: These units are temporary in time, meaning they are bounded in both time and size. Their response is limited to "recognizing and fulfilling". The body is an example of a material unit.
 - Consciousness Units (Self): These units are continuous in time, meaning they are unbounded in time but still limited in size. Their response includes "knowing, assuming, recognizing, and fulfilling". The Self (I) is a consciousness unit.
- Space: In contrast to units, space is unlimited and all-pervading. It has "no activity". Space is described as ever-present, meaning it is unbounded in both time and space.

It provides the foundation for all units to be energized, self-organized, and in relationship with one another.

2. The Expression of Co-existence as the Four Orders of Nature

Co-existence is not a static concept; it is described as being ever-present, ever-effective, and ever-expressing. The magnificence and variety we see in nature are all expressions of this co-existence unfolding. This expression is primarily seen in the form of four distinct orders of nature.

- Physical Order: This order consists of units from atoms to planets. Its activity is formation and deformation.
 - Innateness (Self-organisation): Existence. It exists in a definite order.
 - Natural Characteristic (Participation): Composition and decomposition.
 - Inheritance: Constitution-based. Its conduct is maintained as long as its constitution is unchanged.
- Bio Order: This order consists of units from cells to forests and includes plants and trees. Its activity includes respiration, in addition to formation-deformation.
 - Innateness: Existence + Growth.
 - Natural Characteristic: Nurture-Worsen, in addition to composition-decomposition.
 - Inheritance: Seed-based.
- Animal Order: This is the co-existence of a Self and an animal body.
 - Body: Same characteristics as the Bio Order.
 - Self: Has the activity of selecting and tasting. Its innateness is the "will to live". Its natural characteristic is cruelty or non-cruelty.
 - Inheritance: Breed-based.
- Human Order: This is the co-existence of a Self and a human body.
 - Body: Same characteristics as the Bio Order.
 - Self: Has activities of imaging, analysing-comparing, and selecting-tasting, with the potential for higher activities of contemplation, understanding, and realization. Its innateness is the "will to live with continuous happiness". Its natural characteristics are perseverance, bravery, generosity, kindness, etc..
 - Inheritance: Education and Sanskar based. The conduct of the next generation depends on the education it is given.

3. The Process of Inner Evolution: The Self as the Seer

The Self is the seer of co-existence and its expressions. The process of "inner evolution" is the process of knowing, which involves awakening the Self to its higher activities to see reality completely. The Self can "see" reality at different levels:

- Seeing through Sensation: At the level of tasting/selecting, the Self (using the Body as an instrument) can see the form (shape, size, density) of a unit. At this level, co-existence is perceived merely as two units with a gap or void between them. Space is seen as an absence.
- Seeing what is Rational: At the level of analysing/comparing, the Self can see the property or the effect of one unit on another. Co-existence is now seen as two units with an effect of one on the other. Space is seen as a medium for the transfer of this effect.
- Seeing the Existential Essence: This requires awakening the higher activities of the Self.
 - Contemplation: Allows the Self to see the Natural Characteristic (relationship, participation). Co-existence is seen as a relationship between units. Space is seen as a reality in which this relationship is ensured.
 - Understanding: Allows the Self to see the Innateness (harmony, self-organization). Co-existence is seen as harmony within the unit. Space is seen as the reality in which harmony is ensured.
 - Realization: Allows the Self to see Co-existence itself (submergence). Here, one sees the unit as being submerged in space. Space is finally seen as the reality in which submergence is ensured.

The present system of knowledge is critiqued for focusing only on sensation and rationality (form and property), thereby neglecting the essence. This failure to see the underlying relationship, harmony, and co-existence is identified as the source of major problems like opposition, struggle, and war.

4. The Role of the Human Being in Existence

Based on a complete understanding of the human being and existence, the role of the human being is definite and clear. The essential role is:

1. To understand the co-existence
2. To live in co-existence

This can be expanded to mean the role is to understand and live in co-existence, harmony, and relationship. Fulfilling this role leads to continuous happiness in the Self, which is the basic human desire.

- Understanding Co-existence involves two parts: gaining Knowledge (understanding co-existence itself) and achieving Resolution (having the feeling and thought of co-existence and the clarity of how to live in it).
- Living in Co-existence involves two expressions:
 - Living with Human Beings (Relationship): When this is extended from family to the world family, it results in an Undivided Society.
 - Living with the Entire Nature (Harmony): When this is extended from the family order to the world family order, it results in a Universal Human Order.

The completion point for a human being starts with the realization of co-existence within the Self and is authenticated through living, which ultimately contributes to a Universal Human Order.

Part 2: Key Points for Understanding Existence (1/2 Marks Questions)

- Existence is co-existence, which is in the form of units submerged in space.
- Units are limited in size and are active; Space is unlimited and has no activity.
- There are two types of units: Material (temporary) and Consciousness (continuous).
- The Self is a consciousness unit; the Body is a material unit.
- Co-existence is ever-present, ever-effective, and ever-expressing.
- Nature is the expression of co-existence in the form of four orders: Physical, Bio, Animal, and Human.
- The innateness of the Physical Order is Existence.
- The innateness of the Bio Order is Existence + Growth.
- The innateness of the Self in the Animal Order is the 'will to live'.
- The innateness of the Self in the Human Order is the 'will to live with continuous happiness'.
- Inheritance in the Human Order is based on education and sanskar.
- Submergence in space expresses itself as interaction in the Physical order; interaction + pulsation in the Bio order; sensitivity in the Animal Self; and sensitivity + knowability in the Human Self.
- Knowability is the potential for knowing (right understanding) in the human Self.
- The Self is the seer of co-existence.

- The process of knowing is awakening to the activities of Contemplation, Understanding, and Realization.
- Realization allows the Self to see Co-existence (submergence).
- Understanding allows the Self to see Innateness (harmony).
- Contemplation allows the Self to see Natural Characteristic (relationship).
- The essential role of a human being is to understand co-existence and to live in co-existence.
- Fulfilling this role leads to continuous happiness for the individual and an undivided society and universal human order for all.

Understanding the Human Being Comprehensively

This section provides a detailed exploration of the human being as a co-existence of the Self and the Body. It examines the activities and potentials of the Self, and investigates the reasons for harmony and contradiction within the Self.

Part 1: Detailed Explanations for Long-Form Answers

1. Human Being as Co-existence of Self and Body

A human being is the co-existence of two distinct realities: the Self ('I') and the Body. The Self is a conscious unit, while the Body is a material unit. Their needs, activities, and responses are fundamentally different, and understanding these distinctions is the first step in understanding the human being.

- Needs:

- Self: The need of the Self is for continuous happiness (e.g., respect). This need is continuous in time and qualitative in nature (it is a feeling). It is fulfilled by Right Understanding and Right Feeling.
- Body: The need of the Body is for physical facilities (e.g., food). This need is temporary and required in limited quantities. It is fulfilled by physio-chemical things.

- Activities:

- Self: The activities of the Self include desire, thought, and expectation. These activities are continuous.
- Body: The activities of the Body include eating, walking, and sleeping. These activities are temporary.

- Response:

- Self: The response of the Self is knowing, assuming, recognizing, and fulfilling. The presence of 'assuming' means the Self's conduct can be indefinite if not guided by 'knowing'.
- Body: The response of the Body is limited to recognizing and fulfilling. Its responses are definite.

Interaction between Self and Body The interaction between the Self and the Body occurs exclusively through the exchange of information. There are no physio-chemical or material transactions between the two.

- The Self gives instructions to the Body (e.g., 'get up').

- The Self reads

sensations from the Body (e.g., feeling of cold).

The Self is the one who decides when to give instructions and when to read sensations; therefore, the Body is used as an instrument of the Self. This understanding leads to a feeling of responsibility in the Self towards the Body for its nurturing, protection, and right utilization, which is called

Self-regulation. The natural outcome of self-regulation is Health in the Body.

2. Activities and Potentialities of the Self

The activities of the Self can be understood as existing in two blocks, as shown in the diagram "Realisation of Co-existence & it's expression - Universal Human Order" on page 19 of the source document.

- Block B2 (Imagination): This block contains the lower-level activities of selecting/tasting, analysing/comparing, and imaging (desire). Most of the time, we are busy with these activities.
- Block B1 (Right Understanding): This block contains the higher-level activities and potentialities of the Self. The process of self-evolution involves awakening these higher activities.
 - Contemplation: The ability to see one's relationship, participation in the larger order, and natural characteristic.
 - Understanding: The ability to see the harmony, self-organization, and innateness of a reality.
 - Realization: The ability to see co-existence and the submergence of units in space.

The potential for these higher activities exists within every Self, and our natural acceptance for relationship, harmony, and co-existence serves as the basic guidance for this evolution.

3. Reasons for Contradiction in the Self (The Unguided State)

Contradiction and unhappiness in the Self arise when its lower activities of imagination (Block B2) are unguided by its higher potential (Block B1). In this state, the imagination is driven primarily by unverified preconditioning and sensations from the body. This leads to a state of Animal Consciousness, where one oscillates between temporary excitement and escape from unhappiness.

- Unguided Basis for Analysing-Comparing: When unguided, the basis for our thoughts is:
 1. Appealing to Senses: Liking something based on favorable sensation.
 2. Conducive to Health: Focusing on consumption with an expectation for health.
 3. Profitable: Focusing on the acquisition of physical facility.

This unguided thinking can lead to an obsession for sensation, consumption/indulgence, or profit.

- Unguided Basis for Selecting-Tasting: The basis is predominantly sensation. We try to get happiness from favorable sensations (sound, touch, form, taste, smell). However, sensation is a source of temporary happiness (excitement) only; it cannot provide continuous happiness. The pursuit of happiness from sensation follows a predictable pattern: Tasty-Necessary → Tasty-Unnecessary → Tasteless-Unnecessary → Intolerable.

This pursuit of temporary happiness from external sources like sensation or favorable feelings from others leads to dependence, indefiniteness, and a lack of a completion point. When these sources fail, one may try to run away from the resulting unhappiness through various means of escape, such as overeating, oversleeping, or consuming intoxicants like tobacco, alcohol, and drugs.

4. The Basis for Harmony in the Self (The Guided State)

Harmony in the Self is achieved when the process of self-evolution takes place, and the higher activities of the Self (Block B1) are awakened. These awakened activities then guide the lower activities of imagination (Block B2). This is the transformation from animal consciousness to Human Consciousness, which leads to a state of continuous happiness.

- Guided Basis for Analysing-Comparing: When guided by right understanding, the basis for thought and analysis becomes:
 1. Co-existence: The understanding of mutual fulfillment.
 2. Harmony: The understanding of mutual enrichment in the human-nature relationship, leading to prosperity.
 3. Justice (Relationship): The understanding of mutual fulfillment in human-human relationships.

In this state, sensation is rightly utilized for nurturing the body and for sharing right understanding and feeling.

- Guided Basis for Selecting-Tasting: With right understanding, there are three bases for selection and tasting:
 1. Goal-based: Based on the human goal, such as the realization of co-existence.
 2. Value-based: Based on justice in relationships.

3. Sensation-based: This is now guided by the goal and value-based considerations. Sensation is used for the right identification of physical facilities for nurturing, protection, and right utilization of the body.

When the Self is in this state of harmony, it experiences

Bliss (at the level of understanding), Satisfaction (at the level of contemplation/desire), Peace (at the level of thought), and Happiness (at the level of expectation), which together constitute continuous happiness.

Part 2: Key Points for Understanding the Human Being (1/2 Marks Questions)

- A human being is the co-existence of the Self (a conscious unit) and the Body (a material unit).
- The need of the Self is continuous happiness; the need of the Body is temporary physical facility.
- The interaction between the Self and the Body is only in the form of information: instruction and sensation.
- The Self is the seer, doer, and enjoyer; the Body is an instrument of the Self.
- Self-regulation is the feeling of responsibility in the Self towards the Body for its nurturing, protection, and right utilization.
- The activities of the Self exist in two blocks: B1 (Right Understanding) and B2 (Imagination).
- The higher activities (potentialities) of the Self are Contemplation, Understanding, and Realization.
- Contradiction in the Self is caused when imagination is unguided by higher activities and is driven by preconditioning and sensation.
- The unguided basis for thought leads to obsessions for sensation, consumption, or profit.
- Sensation can only be a source of temporary happiness (excitement), not continuous happiness.
- Living with unguided imagination is called Animal Consciousness, which involves oscillating between excitement and escape from unhappiness.
- Harmony in the Self is achieved when higher activities guide the imagination. This is called Human Consciousness.

- The guided basis for selecting/tasting is goal-based, value-based, and sensation-based (guided by the first two).
- The state of harmony in the Self is experienced as Bliss, Satisfaction, Peace, and Happiness.

Understanding Human Conduct, All-encompassing Resolution & Holistic Way of Living

This section details the nature of definite human conduct, which arises from a complete understanding of the human being and existence. It explores the concept of an all-encompassing resolution and how it translates into a holistic way of living, leading to harmony at all levels.

Part 1: Detailed Explanations for Long-Form Answers

1. All-encompassing Resolution

Resolution is the state of having right feeling and right thought in the Self, which is based on Right Understanding. It implies having clarity about all nine aspects related to the expanse of human living, from the Self to the entire existence. The fulfillment of the human desire for continuous happiness is ensured through this resolution. The nine aspects of resolution are:

- Clarity in the Self (Talent):
 1. Right Understanding: Seeing reality as it is; clarity of co-existence, harmony, and relationship.
 2. Wisdom: Identification of the human goal; knowing "what to do" and "what not to do" as a human being, in alignment with the existential order.
 3. Science: The detailed thought of "how to fulfill the human goal," including the plan, program, and implementation.
- Expression of the Self through the Body (Personality): 4.

Behaviour: Mutually fulfilling interaction with other human beings.

5.

Work: Mutually enriching interaction with the rest of nature.

6.

Participation in Larger Order: Fulfilling one's role in societal systems to achieve the human goal.

- Outcome in Society (Human Society): 7.

Undivided Human Society: The societal expression of living in relationship, from family to world family.

8.

Universal Human Order: The societal system that ensures the fulfillment of the human goal.

9.

Human Tradition: The continuity of an undivided society and universal human order, generation after generation.

2. Understanding Human Conduct

Human conduct is the expression of the Self's state of being. The document presents two models to understand it.

Model 1: The Flow from Realization The complete or ideal human conduct is understood as a flow from the highest activity of the Self downwards.

- It begins with the Realization of co-existence within the Self.

- This leads to the Understanding of harmony in nature and the Contemplation of relationship with all units.

- This complete right understanding (Block B1) provides a definite and universal foundation that guides the imagination (desire, thought, expectation in Block B2). The desire becomes definite: to live in relationship, harmony, and co-existence.
- This internal state of harmony is expressed through the body as:
 - Behaviour that ensures continuous mutual happiness.
 - Work that ensures mutual prosperity always.
 - Participation that always contributes to the larger order.

Model 2: Values, Policy, and Character This model articulates human conduct in three distinct parts:

- Values ("What to do"): This is the understanding of one's participation or role in existence. Human values are definite and universal. They are categorized as:
 - Values in the Self: Happiness, Peace, Satisfaction, Bliss.
 - Values in Universal Human Order: Perseverance, Bravery, Generosity, Kindness, Beneficence, Compassion.
 - Values in Human-Human Relationship (Justice): Trust, Respect, Affection, etc. (9 established values), and their expressions (9 expressed values) like Complementariness.
 - Values in Human-Nature Relationship: Utility Value and Artistic Value.
- Policy ("How to do"): This is the detailed thought, plan, and program for implementing human values. There are policies for the enrichment, protection, and right utilization of the Self, the Body, and Physical Facility, with right utilization being the first priority.

- Character (The Expression): This is the compassionate expression of values and policy in one's living. It includes:
 - Compassionate Behaviour and Work: Ensuring mutual happiness with humans and mutual prosperity with nature, while also filling any gaps created due to ignorance in the past.

- Rightfully Acquired Wealth: Wealth obtained through production via labor, as a gift, or as an award.
- Chastity in Conjugal Relationship: Definiteness of conduct in the husband-wife relationship.

3. Holistic Way of Living and Human Tradition

A holistic way of living is the natural outcome of having an all-encompassing resolution. It covers all four dimensions of human endeavor, leading to harmony from the individual level to the entire existence.

- Realization and Thought (Internal Dimension): This is about achieving the clarity of Right Understanding, Wisdom, and Science within the Self. This internal state of harmony is the source of continuous happiness, experienced as Bliss, Satisfaction, Peace, and Happiness.
- Behaviour and Work/Participation (External Dimension): This is the expression of the Self's internal harmony.
 - Behaviour with other humans ensures justice and mutual happiness, which, when expanded from family to world family, leads to an Undivided Society. The foundation of this is the feeling of Love, which is the realization of co-existence and the acceptance of being related to all.

- Work and Participation with the rest of nature and in societal systems ensures mutual prosperity and the fulfillment of the four human goals (Right Understanding, Prosperity, Fearlessness, Co-existence). This leads to a Universal Human Order, which is realized through five key dimensions: Education-Sanskar, Health-Sanyam, Production-Work, Justice-Preservation, and Exchange-Storage.

- Human Tradition: This is the continuity of the Undivided Human Society and Universal Human Order from generation to generation. A key sequence to materialize this tradition is through a virtuous cycle:

Humanistic Education leads to Human Conduct, which forms the basis of a Humanistic Constitution, which enables a Universal Human Order, which in turn provides for humanistic education for the next generation. The most effective entry point to establish this cycle is Humanistic Education.

Part 2: Key Points for Human Conduct and Holistic Living (1/2 Marks Questions)

- Human conduct is based on the knowledge of the Human Being and Existence.

- Resolution is having right feeling and right thought, based on right understanding, with clarity on all nine aspects of living.
- The first three aspects of resolution are Right Understanding, Wisdom, and Science, which take place in the Self and are the source of continuous happiness.
- Wisdom is the identification of the human goal—what to do and what not to do.
- Science is the detailed thought of how to fulfill the human goal. It has three parts: Science of Behaviour, Science of Work, and Science of Participation.
- The ideal human conduct (Model 1) flows from the Realization of co-existence downwards to guide all thoughts and actions.

- The second model of human conduct is defined by Values, Policy, and Character.

- Values define "what to do"; they are definite and universal.
- Policy defines "how to do"; it has scope for creativity depending on local conditions.
- Character is the compassionate expression of values in one's living.
- Love is the feeling of being related to all and is the foundation of an Undivided Society.
- Compassion, Kindness, and Beneficence are expressions of the feeling of love.
- Holistic living leads to harmony within (Bliss, Satisfaction, Peace, Happiness) and harmony outside (Undivided Society, Universal Human Order).
- Human Tradition is the generation-to-generation continuity of a harmonious society and order.
- The most effective

entry point for establishing a human tradition is Humanistic Education
